TOLD HUSBAND SHE LOVED MAN HE KILLED

MRS. PARKS ELOPED WITH CLAUDE HOWELL, WHO IS KILLED BY HER HUSBAND

"YOU HORRID THING, YOU KNEW I LOVED HIM!" EXCLAIMED THE EERING WIFE

As Her Husband Was Pointed Out as the Slayer of Her Lover—Ohio Couple Are Responsible for a Sensation in a Cananea Hotel.

CANANEA, Mexico, September 27.—This morning about 8:30 o'clock, a man named Claude Howell, 24 years old, was shot and killed by a man named Parks. Both parties are from Maitland, Ohio.

A few days ago Mr. and Mrs. Parks arrived in Bisbee, Ariz., where they remained several days, when the wife left with Howell, coming to this place. The fleeing couple thought themselves safe, evidently, for they made no effort at concealment. They registered at a leading hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Langston.

This morning Parks suddenly appeared at the hotel and inquired for the "Langstons." He was shown to their rooms, Howell being there alone, the woman having gone shopping.

Pursuing the fleeing man, he came in sight of him on the street and fired twice, both bullets taking effect, one going into the right temple and the other through the heart.

Parks was arrested by the Mexican authorities, who later took his wife in custody. Both are being held incommunicado and will be so held for several days.

The relatives of Howell have been communicated with in Maitland. Parks appears to be about 45 years old and his wife 35.

The wife appeared on the scene a few minutes later after the killing and, going to the body, glanced at it, asking, "Who did this?"

Bystanders pointed to Parks, whereupon she turned on him savagely and said: "You horrid thing! You knew I loved him."

DEATH RECORD OF COL. BODIE'S GUN

UNIQUE PIECE OF FICTION WORKED UP IN FANCY AND SERVED AS A FACT BY ENTERPRISING NEWSPAPER MAN.

The following from the New York Globe is an interesting and harmless story that will be appreciated by the many friends of Colonel Brodie in Arizona. It will be entertaining to the colonel also, should he chance to see it, and he will probably write to Mr. Miller for the names of the gentlemen who are represented by the notices on the gun. He may be able from Mr. Miller's press agent to get a few more side lights on his own biography. Here is the story:

"Henry Miller in the first act of 'The Great Divide' at Daly's theater, is now toting a big blue-barreled Colt's

.45 revolver which has a history. The actor-manager came into possession of it in a peculiar way. A few days ago a bellboy at the Hotel Walcott, where the actor-manager lives, brought in to Mr. Miller a card on which was written in a sprightly hand, 'Col. Alexander L. Brodie, Arizona.' The name was unfamiliar, but surmising—correctly, as it eventuated—that the caller was a citizen of the picturesque commonwealth in which the first and second scenes of 'The Great Divide' are located, had come to express his opinion of the play. Mr. Miller decided to receive him. Presently a heavy tread echoed along the corridor and there entered over six feet and 200 pounds of square-shouldered, rugged humanity which grasped the actor's hand with a grip which threatened destruction. Mr. Miller then discovered that his visitor was none other than the redoubtable 'Alec' Brodie, formerly lieutenant colonel of the Roosevelt Rough Riders, and later, by appointment of his former commander, governor of Arizona. On his left hand was a livid scar, the reminder of a Spanish bullet received at Las Guasimas.

"I saw your show at Daly's last night," said Colonel Brodie after the exchange of greetings, "and it reminded me so much of home I couldn't pass up the opportunity of coming around and telling you how much I enjoyed it. Why, when your curtain went up on your 'roof of the world' scene in the second act, I could almost feel myself back on the brink of the Grand Canyon. And as for the cabin in the first act, I've ratched it in many an one just like it."

"But there was one thing that was not right—your gun. Nobody out in Arizona carries a nickel-plated smoke maker like yours. It would be too easy a mark. In the moonlight it would be a dead give-away. Our revolvers are all blue-barreled, so as to be more easily concealed. Like this one."

"And with a quick motion the Rough Rider produced from somewhere near the rear waist line a formidable looking weapon, dark blue in color, save as to the handle, which was black gutta percha and ominously notched."

"Now, I want you to do me a favor," continued Colonel Brodie. "And that is to wear this gun in the show. It'll play the part all right. See those notches? Well, they mean a dozen greasers and Indians that this trinket has turned into good men. I never thought it would go on the stage, but I reckon my days of fighting Indians and Mexicans are over, and that forty-five wouldn't be happy if it had to lead an aimless life."

"Mr. Miller accepted the offer gladly and the shiny pistol which did service all last season at the Princess has been relegated to Daly's property room."

BODIES OF BENNETTS FOUND ON PLAINS OF MEXICO

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY CLEARS A MYSTERY THAT PERPLEXED THE AUTHORITIES

TRAGEDY FOLLOWED QUARREL AND PISTOL TELLS STORY OF THE CRIME

It Is Believed That E. F. Bennett Murdered His Wife and Then Turned the Deadly Weapon Upon Himself—Coroner's Inquest Is Held.

BISBEE, Ariz., September 27.—Finding the bodies of E. F. Bennett, a negro of this city, and his wife, Ollie Bennett, on the prairie about midway between Don Luis and the Warren ranch this morning, clears the mystery of their sudden disappearance after a buggy ride Sunday afternoon and points to the theory of murder and suicide on the part of the man.

The ghastly discovery was made by a Mexican cowboy, the same who encountered the horse dragging the buggy over the plains shortly after the tragedy Sunday afternoon. Stretched at the feet of his spouse was the body of Bennett and on the ground beneath him lay the weapon which dealt the grim climax to the lives of both. Their bodies were in such an advanced state of decomposition as to be almost beyond recognition. A bullet had pierced the right breast of the woman, but the body of the man was in such a state that it was impossible to distinguish any semblance of a wound. The authorities at Lowell were notified immediately and Coroner Grier summoned a jury, composed of the following: Jake Adams, Joe Lang, A. McAfee, George Ballard, H. J. Dietter and W. E. Roberts. Inquest will be held this evening. The remains of both victims were placed in charge of the Palace undertaking establishment.

Early Sunday afternoon Bennett hired a rig from the Palace stables and in company with his wife started for a drive south of the city. This was the last seen of them until their bodies were discovered this morning. Becoming suspicious over possible foul play on the part of the man, the relatives of the dead woman reported her absence to the authorities, who have since been executing a diligent search for a trace of either of them, following the finding of the empty buggy.

Domestic differences have been a prominent factor in the life of the couple during the past few months, it is stated, and the buggy ride Sunday was inaugurated on the heels of a violent quarrel between the two. However, it is stated that prior to the quarrel, the couple had been reconciled.

Circumstances in the case fully substantiate the theory of murder and suicide. The weapon used was a Colt revolver of .41 caliber and of the six chambers, five were empty.

BEHRENDSCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

WELL KNOWN LOWELL CITIZEN IS CHARGED WITH PURLOINING NEARLY A THOUSAND DOLLARS FROM A MINER.

A great sensation was caused at Lowell today when Charles Kemnitz, a miner, caused the arrest of B. H. Behrends, owner of a large amount of property at that place and proprietor of the 8th saloon, on the charge of embezzling $950 which Kemnitz had left in his charge for safe keeping, says the Bisbee Miner.

Behrends pleaded not guilty to the charge and was released from custody on furnishing bonds for his appearance tomorrow morning.

Kemnitz alleges that a short time since he drew his entire savings amounting to $950, from the Bank of Bisbee after Behrends had told him time and again that the banks were liable to fail, and at his (Behrends) solicitation deposited the money with him for safe keeping. He alleges that Behrends now pretends to have forgotten any such sum having been given him and denies knowledge of the affair.

On account of the prominence of Behrends in the community, considerable sensation was caused by the rumor of his arrest. A large crowd will probably be at Justice Grier's court tomorrow morning to hear the preliminary examination.

Fooled a Faithful City Officer

One of Globe's city officers while passing the Central Market yesterday stopped in and inquired if the plumbing was in a sanitary condition. He had not time to receive an answer before he noticed that the store certainly had a large supply of fresh limburger cheese. He immediately made a purchase and was greatly bothered on his way home by friends inquiring where he had secured the same. On stating that he had purchased the cheese from the Central Market, naturally caused a great rush to the establishment, which was handled in a creditable manner by its efficient employees.

Besides our limburger, we have a large supply of Swiss cheese, oysters in bulk and can, and everything good that tickles the palate. Give us a trial and follow the push.
